SDG 3: Good Health & Well-Being

The Goal: Ensure healthy lives and promote well-being for all at all ages

Why This Matters:

- High levels of stress and anxiety. Correlation between mental clarity and GPA.
- Poor dietary habits through vending machines as students are often reliant on energy drinks and junk foods
- Lack of accessible, quick wellness solutions during their study time.

80% of students say mental health issues directly impact their academic performance

76% experienced moderate-to-high stress in 2024 (American College Health Assoc.)

Only 7% of stressed students actually seek help from a mental health professional

NYU STERN

Our Solution

How This Addresses SDG 3

Target 3.4 — Reduce premature mortality from non-communicable diseases

Mental Health

By placing QR-linked meditations and stress tools in a casual cafe setting, the solution lowers the barrier to entry for mental health resources, transitioning them from "crisis-only" to "daily-routine.

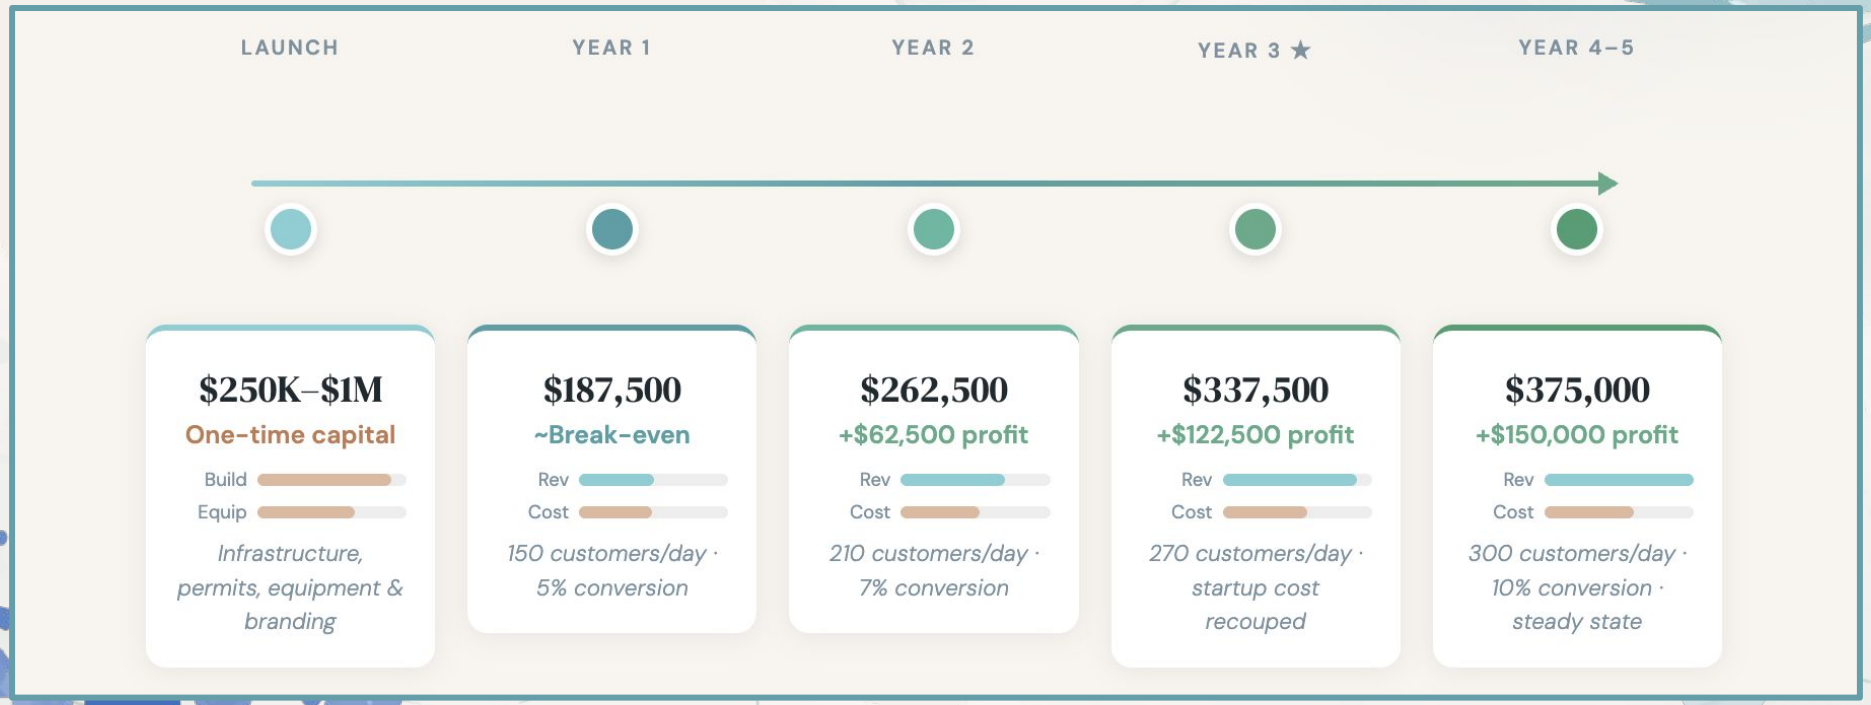

Healthy Lifestyle Choices

Replacing standard vending snacks with our options addresses the limited nutritional variety often found in study spaces, providing the necessary means for sustained cognitive function.

Outreach & Professional Feedback

Steven Tannutjahya
Director of Budget & Finance @ Bobst Library

Strengths Identified: Mission alignment with wellness, potential to staffing with students, and leveraging existing NYU vendor relationships

Considerations: Stronger financial viability & ROI justification, fire codes & safety parameters, insurance & permitting, setup costs

Suggestions: Pursue external capital fundraising to offset costs, explore MVP through healthier vending machines

Courtn ey Hirsch
Chief of Staff @ Office of the Dean of the Division of Libraries

Strengths Identified: Current vending machine area needs upgrade, cafe would respond to wellness needs of student body

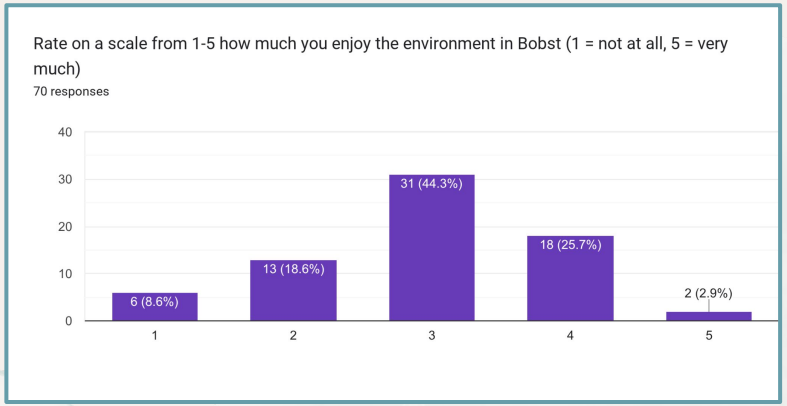

Considerations: Legality of student-run operations, major renovation needed, food storage, capital allocation from NYU

Suggestions: Expand seating area, explore collaboration with NYU vendors/NYU Chartwells, explore MVP through healthier vending machines

Survey & Collected Data

Survey & Feedback

"I think it would be a great idea! Would definitely make it feel like a chiller place and help reduce stress and anxiety over homework and exams."

"I would love to have access to fresh food and drinks right inside of the building! The vending machines are very expensive and I worry about how old the products are."

"A cafe will probably add a more welcoming environment."

Risks & Mitigants

Competitors

Noise - LL1 established as social space
Student Alignment - Offering collaborations with wellness professionals, student-run operational opportunities, open at later times

Future Opportunities

Student Innovation

- Allow hands-on work experience
- Students can analyze real sales data
- Opportunity to propose improvements on marketing, sustainability practices, etc
- Potential dining dollars

Professional Workshops

- Registered dieticians discuss effects of food on focus, memory, energy
- Short workshops run by therapists

Bobst Wellness Cafe

Strategic Positioning

Who We Serve

NYU students in high-stress, high-traffic study environments looking for convenient wellness support.

What We Offer

A low-barrier, integrated wellness experience that includes healthy snacks, calming drinks, and mental health micro-resources all in one spot

How We're Different

Hours will be opened later. It's a seamless, passive wellness touchpoint that fits into a student's existing routine

Why It Works

Convenience + accessibility (Dining Dollars) + high foot traffic = maximum reach with minimum friction
